

Bruce's Dream House

After Mojo's visit to the human world, Bruce was fascinated, and ready to move himself! But what does an amazing human house look like? He needs your help to design a place to call home.

In this activity, you will work together to build Mojo's friend Bruce his dream house! But, there's a catch: you must stick to your assigned roles, listen, and build on each other's strengths.

 1 hour

Materials needed

- Scissors
- Glue and Tape
- Egg cartons, cereal boxes, any recycled cardboard
- Paper
- Paint/markers and other decorating supplies

Directions

Step 1: Plan and Design!

Work together to plan a design for Bruce's home. Create a sketch and list of what his house should have!

Step 2: Assign your roles!

Every task must only be done by ONE person. Each team member can have more than one role, but no role can be shared. Suggested roles: Tape/Glue Leader, Scissor Master, Painter, Builder, Writer, Researcher, Landscaper.

Step 3: Build!

Now get to work on designing and building Bruce's dream home! The challenge is to stick to your assigned roles.

Step 4: Discuss!

- How did it feel sticking to only your assigned job(s)?
- What parts of this activity were the hardest? How did you work it out?
- Think about your family. What roles does everyone play in daily chores and routines?
- What ways can you work together everyday?

Habit tip! People are working in teams all around us, everyday. Sports teams, city workers, construction sites, restaurants and grocery stores are some examples. Make a game of discovering teams and different roles you see that help your communities thrive!
